MISTRAL was founded as “Andover Chamber Music” in 1997, by flutist Julie Scolnik and her husband, physicist Michael Brower. Since then, MISTRAL has presented approximately 10-12 concerts a year primarily in the New England area. They currently perform a regular series in both Andover and Brookline. They have been invited to perform by presenters across the country.

Each season, MISTRAL presents most of its regular five-concert series in two intimate church settings, both acoustically perfect: the historic West Parish Church in Andover, where curved pews enhance the intimacy and connection between players and audience, and St Paul’s Episcopal Church in Brookline. The annual holiday Baroque concert is performed at the festive pine-filled South Church of Andover as well as at Saint Paul’s Episcopal Church of Brookline.

Artistic Director Julie Scolnik assembles internationally-renowned musicians from New York, California, Philadelphia, Chicago, and abroad and creates imaginative thematic programs that combine beloved masterpieces with newly-discovered gems. Audiences look forward to Scolnik’s welcoming remarks and to the introductions of the pieces by the artists before they perform.
